In the drastic levels of corruption, Poland was ranked 38th in the 175 country listing of corruption Perception Index, in 2013. In recent years corruption in Poland has declined.

Although in the national rankings it is below the world average, it is not as insignificant. With the help of the Atlantic Treaty Organization (including countries such as Belgium, Bulgaria, Canada, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, and Norway just to name a few) would be able to have a decreasing percentage in corruptions. Poland suffers corruptions because of public services, civil society, the judicial system, and tax administration. With solving these problems Poland will be able to progress.

There are five Polish regional cultural traditions with associated dialects. Poles residing abroad could be considered as a sixth group. Regional cultural differences, identification, and dialects are becoming increasingly less noticeable and less important. Cultural Heritage represent the pinnacle of both natural and human-made creations around the world. In Poland, the principles of democracy and local government are relatively newly adopted than economic development is an overwhelming priority, leading to a risk that culture heritage is misused. One of the dangers is the preservation of cultural heritage will be treated as a less important task for local communities. When this happens, The National Heritage Board of Poland (state agency) gathers and disseminates information on heritage, sets standards for its protection and conservation, and aims to raise the social awareness on cultural heritage of Poland in order to save it for future generations in accordance with the strategy for sustainable development. The main objective of the National Heritage Board of Poland is to implement the State's policy concerning the protection of cultural heritage and its supervision through assuring the best and most comprehensive conditions for preserving it for future generations
