Czechoslovakia is a nation of growth, its economy, government, and lifestyle of the people have all changed. The government is now a democratic federal state instead of a Communist style government. To ensure Czechoslovakia's safety as an independent democratic nation the choice of who shall lead is crucial. The president should be someone well liked, someone who is a supporter of Public Against Violence. The president should be someone who can be the face of change and a symbol of things getting better. Someone like Vaclav Havel could be this person. During the Velvet Revolution he was a key player and helped topple communism in Czechoslovakia. We should also have person elected should appoint other people for positions in the government.

Once we have elected a new president the government focus should go on to fixing the Czechoslovak economy. The one of the key problems with the economy is the high rates of inflation. To help combat this the government should implement a program that turns the focus from larger companies to smaller ones. However seeing as how Czechoslovakia's main export is machinery and transportation equipment there should also the government should ensure that factory work is safe. This will help combat another problem with Czechoslovakia's government, the high rates of unemployment. Czechoslovakia is $3 billion in foreign debt, this problem is caused by Czechoslovakia lacking many necessary natural resources. However one natural resource that they do have several coal rich areas that are beneficial to look into for natural resources. Many people do not think Czechoslovakia GPD is lacking compared to the neighboring countries. This should be changed, to fix this we can enforce new policies that ensure production is efficient and create the wanted results. To do this the government could implement enforceable quotas that each factory must meet. Since the factories are producing more Czechoslovakia will have more to sell to the international market. With these new programs and increase productivity Czechoslovakia will be able to provide more jobs for the unemployed people in Czechoslovakia.

In the future Czechoslovakia need to create a way the government can maintain this democratic position and that the majority of the Czechoslovakian people are happy with the government and how it works. If the majority of people are disapprove of what the government is implementing or how it is implementing it something needs to change immediately. This will ensure that the czechoslovakian people are always happy with the government and if they are not the government will know. The new programs to implement in the increase in production of the Czechoslovakian government will improve the economy and reduce the problems the people have with the Czechoslovakian government. With increase productivity and the implementation of the new government Czechoslovakia has the opportunity to become even better than the neighboring nations.
