

Scottish Independence- Scotland- John III (Red Comyn), Lord of Badenoch

John III 'Red' Comyn, Lord of Badenoch and Lord of Lochaber, also known simply as the Red Comyn was a Scottish nobleman who was an important figure in the Wars of Scottish Independence, and was Guardian of Scotland during the Second Interregnum 1296–1306. He is best known for having been stabbed to death by the future Robert I of Scotland before the altar at the church of the Greyfriars at Dumfries.

The Red Comyn believe that Scotland should have been independent and it should not be under England's power, because Scotland have seen what happened to Wales when England started to take over power in Wales and they have done nothing except roughening people's lives and and rising the taxes basically they have made the rich richer and the poor poorer. England can not even roll their own country that does not have a balance between their people, that lower class people don't even have the power to get what they deserve from the upper class. How can a country lead another independent country when they don't have a balance for people in their own country?

However as it is clear for the people of Scotland the de Brus family does not think about their homeland (Scotland) and the only thing that they care about is that money and power so they would do whatever it takes to get power and money and what is a easier way than working for the English government ?

But we the guardians of Scotland will not let that some frugal people lead such a great country like Scotland, however not even some of the Comyn family such as the Red Comyns father "John II Comyn" he is a man that does not know what he is doing he is a true hero on the battlefield but not even close when he gets to political stuff, he wants to be the king really bad and that is why he need to be censored with whatever possible method.

Majority of Scottish people are saying that we need a Scottish king that cares about the future of Scotland and not just himself and the rich people it does not matter of which family the king will be because he will have all of our respect and loyalty, except some families that only care about what benefits will they get out of each situation and they don't have any right to become the king or someone important in Scotland.

There would be great war between England and Scotland and we are ready for that we will go in with whatever we have and however we can, but we will not let our country lead by bloody English people that they can't run their own kingdom without bias between the poor and the rich, and we don't want that to happen to our nice country.
